Help rescue good food for lasting social impact

Help sustain a network of hope from Gloucestershire to Cornwall

Tackling the broken food system

Each year, good-to-eat food for 10 billion meals is wasted by the UK food industry with devastating climate impact, while nearly one in five experience food insecurity.

Joining the dots between food waste and hunger

FareShare South West rescues quality food from farms, suppliers, and manufacturers to share millions of meals with over 350 schools, community groups, and food clubs. Over 50% of the food we rescue is fresh fruit, veg, and dairy, helping us fight the injustice of who gets to afford a healthy diet.

Building resilient communities

Food is a catalyst for connecting people with support services that transform lives. We ensure food is available where and when it's needed – creating dignity, joy, and routes out of embedded poverty for thousands.

You can make a positive impact on your community too when you partner with us. Keep reading to discover how.

"I'm proud that our colleagues chose to stand behind an organisation that tackles hunger with such scale, compassion, and ingenuity. Supporting FareShare South West means supporting stronger, fairer communities and that's a commitment we're honoured to make."

The best partnerships come out of aligned values, open communication, and clarity of purpose. We'll bring our experience, ideas, and opportunities, but we're also here to listen and learn.

Or create a partnership that's totally unique

Langage Farm is renowned for clotted cream, ice-cream, and luxury yoghurts. It's also the UK's first carbon-neutral dairy, home to a pioneering anaerobic digester which converts food waste into green energy. When products don't meet their exact standards – too much fruit in a jar or too little – it comes to us.

"Working alongside FareShare South West is mutually beneficial. We can supply surplus food that they distribute, but also take their food that isn't of a quality they can share. We put that surplus into our anaerobic digestion facility where it gets produced into green energy. So it makes a nice little green loop."

How Field & Flower support us

“We wanted to make sure that those who were in need or didn't have access to high quality meat could get it.”

Field & Flower started by sharing free range meat and sustainable fish from cancelled orders and have gone on to raise funds through customer donations. Their support has enabled us to provide food for 480,000 meals. They also spearheaded the Leg Up campaign, which saves turkey legs from going to waste at Christmas and ensures they reach people who might otherwise go without.

“We want to build long term relationships that are sustainable, where we can make a difference over a long period of time. We're ten years in and that's a relationship that we're really proud of. For me, it's probably one of our best achievements since setting up the business.”

Plymouth Food Co-Ops

Food co-ops are neighbourhood buying groups owned and run by the people who use them. Co-op members effectively set up their own local food hub in which they volunteer their time, and contribute the same amount of money to organise their weekly shop.

FareShare South West supports co-ops with weekly deliveries of affordable, good-to-eat surplus food. Co-ordinator Kelly said: "We would not be able to do this without FareShare South West, it enables members and their families to access lots of healthy nutritious fruit and vegetables at a very low cost."

"The food co-op helped me through a dark time and provided me with the ability to broaden my recipe ideas. The social aspect and friendships made have massively benefitted my mental wellbeing."

Learning Partnership West, Bristol

LPW provides alternative learning provision in Bedminster, and also coordinates mentoring, play and youth sessions, including Hartcliffe's Big Hideout adventure playground. 1 in 6 people in Hartcliffe leave school with no qualifications, so support to stay engaged with education is vital.

FareShare South West's weekly deliveries of fresh ingredients mean better nutrition for young people as they grow. The food gives gives children a high-quality meal and the opportunity to try new dishes and ingredients, broadening their experiences at the same time as reducing food waste.

"When it comes to health, what you're putting inside your body is huge. Through cooking sessions, students learn valuable life skills. We give them the confidence to go and cook some relatively simple things at home."

Corporate volunteering opportunities

Our partners tell us they love volunteering! Join us for an active, inspiring day, supporting us with tasks that benefit people and planet, and bring FareShare South West to life.

At a hub: for teams of 4 to 6 volunteers

As a group of Warehouse Assistants, make real impact by supporting our daily operations with hands-on, active tasks. From packing food orders to quality-checking our fresh produce, these shifts are great for teambuilding and colleague wellbeing.

On a van as a Driver's Mate: for individuals

Load up a van and jump in with a volunteer driver, helping to deliver good food directly to the doorsteps of those we support. You'll meet brilliant charities and people on the frontline as you navigate Bristol and beyond to make food deliveries.

"A rewarding day that takes you away from the day to day role and makes you appreciate the volume of food that would go to waste."

Olly, corporate volunteer

Special corporate volunteering opportunities

Seasonal farm volunteering

Spend a day in a farm or orchard with your team harvesting surplus food directly from the field. A fantastic day out in nature that is great for wellbeing, team bonding, and making a real impact.

Winter parcel packing

Join us with your team to spread festive cheer while packing holiday food and activity parcels for families in receipt of free school meals outside term time across Bristol, Bath, and Northeast Somerset.

Did you know? We prioritise group volunteering opportunities for partners.

If there's space, other groups can book a shift. For this, we suggest a £50 per person donation. This helps you support us financially without committing to a full partnership and reflects the work our teams invest in creating your experience.

Now's the time to act

“Food insecurity has been and remains a stark reality for many vulnerable individuals in the local region. The issues, as we know are highly complex. We need to continue to work together to co-create a collective solution to this ongoing critical issue. And this requires us to do things differently. It might push us out of our comfort zone. We might need to work with new people, new partners who have different agendas and cultures. But we need to consider and embrace innovation and creative approaches to catalyse the change required.”
